Farm Bureau Interesting self Actively in Agri- cultural Project

Experiments to be Conducted on F
Of Charles H. Steele Near F
City—Coke Production Has Ca
Grass To Wither Away.

Realizing that blue grass is a mainstay in Fayette county, if stock raising is to become one of its important industries, some very interesting experiments in land fertilizing on the farm of Charles Steele, located on the road between Brownsville and Fayette City, have been conducted by the Fayette County Farm Bureau.

Previous to the advent of the coke works in that county, the in Fayette was well adapted to blue grass, which grew in profusion. When the coke ovens were put to operation, with their sulphur smoke, this grass gradually died until it has now been a thing of the past for many years, horse shoes taking its place in many localities.

The next project of the Farm Bureau will be a series of corn variety tests, which will be made on several different farms in Fayette county. A number of varieties of corn will be tried on the farm to determine which variety gives the largest numbers of bushels of shelled corn under the general conditions.

On each of the seven farms to be used in the tests approximately eighth acre will be used and farm will have all eight of the plots to be grown. The farms were those of T. W. Gans of Gans station, W. M. Thompson of near Uniontown, David H. Binns of Fayette City, E. Metzger of Connellsville, J. Prinkley of Mill Run; E. S. Mitchell of Chiopyle; and Harry Randle of Farmington.

Later in the year, the Farm rean will put on a series of aucursions by means of which inteed parties can see the results o various experiments through the PRECAUTIONS.

Now that the vacation season is approaching, when the town folk will seek rest from their daily toils, in the realms of nature, a word of warning against careless drinking of the waters of the state, says State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon.

While thousands of pollutions have been removed from our streams, it will take years to correct the evils that have been growing ever since our civilization began in this country. If you desire to avoid typhoid fever this coming season, co-operate with those working to improve health conditions. In your travels never depend upon the celebrated town pump, the clearness of a stream or the sparkling waters offered by the wayside dweller to quench your thirst, unless you know of the purity of the water. Depend upon what you carry with you, or if camping, boil the water before using it for domestic purposes. It is better not to indulge in water cooled with natural ice from an unknown source. Do not clean your teeth, rinse your mouth or wash vegetables or fruit to be eaten raw, in unknown waters without first boiling it for ten or fifteen minutes.

There are hundreds of deaths and thousands of cases of typhoid fever in the United States each summer and fall because of failure to observe these precautions.

If you send your family to a summer resort without assuring yourself of the purity and safety of the water supply, you may be risking their lives.

COURTESY ON RAILROADS.

The famous "public be d—!" policy governed railroads for a great many years and a large ratio, if not a majority, of those railroad employees who dealt directly with the public were a crusty lot. They were never told, or given the slightest incentive, to be otherwise, says Fred C. Kelly in the American Magazine. The consequence was that discourtesy has cost the railroads in this country millions of dollars. A friend of mine analyzes it in this way: A conductor, brakeman, gateman or ticket agent is the only point of contact between the stockholders of a railroad and the public. When a farmer's wife was discourteously treated by a conductor, brakeman, gateman, or ticket agent, she went home and taught her children to fear God and hate a railroad. Her boys grew up to become legislators, land appraisers, county commissioners, jurors and so on. The railroads know the rest. Public service corporations by means of discourtesy have done more to promote socialism than all the street-corner agitators.

According to announcement gas fields are being drilled in West Virginia that will guarantee western Pennsylvania consumers against curtailment of their supply the next and succeeding winters. It is to be hoped the announcement is borne out by facts. Last winter during the busiest period of the year as well as the coldest, the gas pressure became so low that mills were forced in various instances to suspend. This fact lends credence to the belief that western Pennsylvania fields are giving out. It is true that last winter there was a greater demand for gas than there had been in any previous period in history. If the present boom times continue there will be equally as heavy demand the coming winter. Considering this probability the West Virginia fields are being drilled in. The importance of the movement remains to be seen.

Allegheny county has concluded to build the Elkhorn road opposite Monacahele and not try to span the Monacahele river with a river bridge. Months ago Allegheny discovered it was making a mistake of error in the endeavor to put through the Elkhorn road. Tens of thousands of dollars not anticipated in the expense budget were poured into the improvement with only discouraging results. Then the bridge idea hit Allegheny this spring and it was suggested to Washington county. But Washington is not in position to help build bridges at Courtney or any other point just now needing money for road improvements of its own. Allegheny has just become aware of this and in response to requests of citizens has determined to put through the Elkhorn improvement, reckoning as well as possible with cost. What remains now is to do the work. It will not be easy, but it will not be impossible. The stream has been an improved road to Pittsburgh from upper valley points, with this part, and the Elkhorn is a short time will be a reality.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

When a spark is struck, it is a very small thing, but it is a very big thing, for it is the spark that starts the fire.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

An Indianapolis woman, who recently returned from Rochester, Minn., where she was taking treatment of the Mayo Bros., tells the following story of a farmer who was visiting in the city.

"And this park was given to the city by the Mayos!" he exclaimed. "And the Mayos gave this library to the city, and this church was built by the Mayos and the money for this school was contributed by the Mayos." informed his host as they sped about the city seeing the sights.

"Well, that is wonderful!" said the farmer. "They certainly have made Rochester. Here comes a cat. I suppose that belongs to the Mayos, too. Let's stop and ask it."

"Say, kitty, who do you belong to?" asked the farmer of the cat.

"Me-ow," replied the cat.

Two neighbors had a long litigation about a small spring, which they both claimed. The Judge, wearied out with the case, at last said:

"What is the use of making so much fuss about a little water?"

"Your honor will see the serious nature of the case," replied one of the lawyers, "When I inform you that the parties are both milkmen."

Assyria.

There is no "Assyria" at the present day. A large part of Syria belonged to a city to the ancient empire of the Assyrian kings, and it is altogether probable that the word Syria is an abbreviation of Assyria. Ancient Assyria was the country between the Tigris and the Euphrates in the north and the Persian Gulf in the south, and the Tigris and the Euphrates in the east and the Persian Gulf in the south.

RICHES TO BE DEVELOPED

Beds of Shale in Western States Will Yet Be Made to Yield Millions of Dollars.

Little attention has been paid to shale in this country because the quantity of petroleum produced from wells in the United States has been sufficient to satisfy all demands, but for many years the oil shale industry of Scotland has been a very important one. In a recent year more than 2,000,000 tons were employed in the industry in that country, yet the average yield of oil from shale was much less than that which appears possible from the shale of Colorado and Utah. It is estimated that in Colorado alone there is sufficient shale to yield three feet or more thick and thicker than the shale being mined in Scotland, to yield twenty billion barrels of crude oil, from which at least two billion barrels of gasoline may be extracted by ordinary refining processes. This shale contains materials which, when heated, may be converted into crude oil, gas and ammonia. The high cost of extracting oil from shale as compared to the cost of producing oil from wells has thus far prevented the development in this country of such an industry and may continue to prevent it for some time, but in due time this great source of supply will be utilized to supplement the decreasing production from the regular oil fields. The gas, which is a very good illuminating gas, will perhaps be sufficient to furnish all the heat required to distill the crude oil from the shale. Ammonia, a most valuable by-product of the distillation, may be utilized in the manufacture of commercial fertilizer or other nitrogen compounds, as the market demands.

QUEER FISH AT PALM BEACH

Elephant-Eared Sunfish, 200 to 400 Years Old, Caught, and Weighs Nearly a Ton.

The oddest-looking fish ever taken in Palm Beach, and probably the only one of its kind ever caught in American waters was harpooned in the Gulf stream the other day by Ambrose Monnell, Jr., president of the Midvale Steel company. It was an elephant-eared sunfish, estimated to have been spawned anywhere from 200 to 400 years ago and to have weighed then about one sixtieth of its present weight when captured, which was close to a ton. Both John D. Crimmins of New York and F. B. Magill of Cincinnati, each an authority on fish, expressed such an opinion. The American Museum of Natural History wired for a plaster cast of the fish and its brain for research work.

It was shaped and formed like the little sunfish that swims in a glass bowl, except that it had ears like an elephant and that they were folded close to the skin. The hide was like emery paper in color and texture. The fish is native to African waters.

Music While Employees Work.

A dry-cleaning establishment in Cincinnati has come to the conclusion that if its employees hear music at frequent intervals while they work it will not only make them happier, more contented and better workers, but that they will accomplish more than if they were without it.

Working upon this theory, there have been installed throughout the big establishment enough phonographs to keep lively music playing most of the day.

The records are selected with care. First a funeral selection, or a dreamy waltz should creep in. There are many lively dance records and popular songs. The workers hum and sing to the lively music and the speed of the music puts the speed into their work.—Popular Science Monthly.

Cows Must Be Good.

As the spring approaches and the grass begins to appear the festive cow, whose species was the cause of a recent municipal election here, became an important object on the landscape. Orling has legislated in the past that each family may permit one cow to run at large during daylight hours upon payment to the town of a license fee of 50 cents per year. It is not contemplated to restrict the number of cows that a family may own, but the town will permit but one cow for each family to run at large at night, and any cow found to be notoriously destructive of gates and fences may be banished from the streets. If you have any more cows running at large, the law allows, look out for Officer GILLIARD.—Orting Oracle.

Pretty Warm Sun.

It would build up a solid column of ice from the earth to the sun, two miles and a half in diameter, spanning the intervening distance of 93,000,000 miles, and if the sun should concentrate its entire power upon it, it would dissolve in a single second, according to the calculations made by Professor Young.

The great German physicist, Holmboitz, was the first to explain satisfactorily what keeps the sun hot. The sun is not burning. It is heated to the glowing point, like a piece of white-hot iron. Holmboitz found that if we suppose the sun to be contracting by only 23 feet a year we would receive our present amount of heat. In other words, heat is being literally squeezed out of the sun. Professor Newcomb estimated that when the squeezing process has continued for about 7,500,000 years, the sun will be one-half its present size.—Popular Science Monthly.

GINGLES' JINGLES

SOCRATES.

Socrates, we're told, was brainy, he had much within his loir, he had thoughts were hard to fathom, his ideas thus were scoffed, but through him much superstition then in vogue was blotted out, 'cause he'd not accept the teachings handed to him clothed in doubt. He must know the why and wherefore, know the reason things were thus, always loaded down with questions ever ready to discuss, and be stood by his conclusions, putting up an awful fight, when convinced by thought and reason, that what he announced was right. He was firm in his convictions, once he took a stand—he stuck there for keeps, you could not move him, for he had the will and pluck. True, he died because he reasoned, he was killed because he thought, but we're benefited greatly just because he lived and fought. That's the kind of stuff that's needed—that's the steam that drives 'er home: know you're right, then stick and conquer—though they amputate your dome. Ernest J. Gingles

Find Bullets in Gunstocks.
Employees of the Remington Arms company's plant at Eddystone, Pa., in turning out gunstocks for the allies have made the interesting discovery that they are constantly coming across bullets imbedded in the rough walnut stocks. These stocks are shipped to Eddystone in the rough from points in the West and South and stored in an immense dry kiln.

It is considered not improbable that the bullets may have been buried in the trunks of the walnut trees either in the war of half a century ago or longer ago, in the days of bloody strife between the "noble red man of the forest" and the settlers of the West.

Respect for Law?

Because an assistant district attorney was on the car and because the dead bird was legally property of the state, everyone on a Rochester (N. Y.) trolley car was afraid to touch the body of a pheasant which flew through the window and killed itself the other day, the conductor, careful not to lay hands on the bird, finally pushing it off the car with a stove poker.

HARRISBURG WOMAN

FINDS QUICK RELIEF

Mary Wheeler Gains in Weight After Taking Wonderful Remedy.

Mary Wheeler of 706 Green street, Harrisburg, Pa., for a long time was a victim of stomach disorders. She tried many treatments and found nothing that could help her.

At last she came upon Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and quickly found herself on the way to health. She wrote: "I received your wonderful stomach remedy. I took it and it acted just as you said it would. I had suffered with my stomach for nearly a year and doctored all the time. The first dose of your treatment gave me relief. I feel like new. I had awful distress after eating and suffered from bloating and gas, but now I feel fine, am gaining in weight and can eat anything."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

Heed the Warning

If You Have a Cough!

The deep-seated cough that does not yield to ordinary treatment may lead to distressing pulmonary troubles. Or it may bring on a chronic bronchial affection. Many persons now incapacitated might have avoided such disastrous results by timely care and efficient medical treatment.

Among the latter Eckman's Alternative has an enviable record. It is a lime-bearing preparation which is easily assimilated in most instances. Where used in connection with nourishing food and proper living, it has given widespread relief.

Its freedom from poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any nature whatsoever renders it safe to try. And its content of calcium gives it tonic value.

WHAT CHANCE DID

The proprietors of that particular breakfast food certainly knew what they were about when they originated the scheme.

They put a coupon in every package and each coupon was marked with a letter of the alphabet. All you had to do, for instance, was to acquire the letters composing the word "basted" and the Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit people straightway sent you a beautiful chicken, 1.50 in size, guaranteed to be delicious, tender, and to win the admiration of all holders. C, H, A, I and R would bring you a chicken that would be an ornament to the table and a joy to sit in. P, L, A, N and O—well, you were lucky enough to get them—made you the proud possessor of the very best piano on the market.

Mrs. Gatterley allowed her opportunity to go unimpaired for several packages. She had an idea that the coupons were best for decorated china or a silver-plated fork with a very handsome, but one morning she picked one of the little lettered slips from the table and her curiosity being aroused, she read the magnificent offer to the last word. Her curiosity became interest. The piano fetched her. Decorated china and silver-plated were she had in profusion, being a bride of less than a year's standing, but the piano in her little flat was a rented one. The coupon, too, was lettered P. Fortunate omen!

"How perfectly lovely it will be," said little Mrs. Gatterley. "I'll just keep it a secret and surprise Harry. Then he won't have that horrid old piano rent to pay."

"My dear," said Mr. Gatterley a morning or two later, "aren't you rather lavish with your breakfast food? I'm afraid that I can't manage all this."

"Try to eat it, darling," urged Mrs. Gatterley. "You know it's very nourishing. I forget how many pounds of beefsteak it's equal to, but quite a number."

"There must be enough of it here to equal a prize ox," observed Mr. Gatterley. "However, I'll do my best."

Next day, with some diffidence he remarked that a little oatmeal might be a pleasant change. "You know," he said, "the doctors say that it isn't a good thing to take too much nourishing food." Then, as he saw the disappointed expression on his wife's face, he said: "Well, never mind, dear, we'll stick to Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit. Probably I'll get used to it in time." Nothing more was said about it then. By this time Mrs. Gatterley was becoming a little feverish about those coupons. She even did violence to her housewifely instincts so far as to throw away the last dainty or so remaining in her packages, in order to get a new one the sooner. She justified this, or tried to, with the excuse that it was getting a little stale. She had now acquired three P's, two H's, one A, two T's and an O. Every time she went into the parlor she nodded her head at the piano and said to it: "I won't be paying rent much longer for you."

Then Mr. Gatterley openly rebelled. She had served him Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit with preserves and cream for lunch and a Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit pudding for dinner. He said it was making him so energetic that he overexerted himself and that he was going to taper off on beefsteak and get back to his normal condition. "I'll take it once a week to oblige you, sweetness," he concluded, "but I feel as if even this delightful and nutritious fodder was getting a trifle monotonous. Let us have something—anything else. Why this anxiety to fill me with sawdust? I'm not a pincushion or a doll."

So Mrs. Gatterley told him all about it. At first he laughed at her, but when she showed him the progress she had made he became really interested. "Why, you only need an I and an N, don't you?" he said. "I should think we ought to be able to get them. I'll diet a little longer."

The Gatterleys ate Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit religiously for a week or ten days. They were both pretty sick of it by this time, but they persevered—with no further results than a consecutive run of C's. Then Gatterley said: "Oh, what's the use of eating the stuff? We don't have to eat it."

So Gatterley plugged. He bought it a dollar's worth at a time and they had great excitement opening the packages. But, as Gatterley phased it, they could not fill their hand.

It was within four days of the expiration of the coupon offer that the woman who came in once a week to scrub the flat cleaned out the pantry, and with it the can that held the coupons. That was the Gatterley theory. The woman could not remember. Anyway, the coupons had disappeared. Gatterley had just brought home a fresh consignment of packages and among them were the missing letters, N and I.

He lit his pipe with them. A day later some one advertised for the letter N and offered $15 for it.

When that advertisement met his eye Gatterley took 38 packages of Yu-Shor-Ta-Likit out to the garbage chute and emptied them therein. His wife stood by and smiled through her tears at him.

"Well, dearest," she said, "I'm glad it's all over, anyway."

PREFERRED LIFE IN JAIL

Chief of Police Found Himself Unable to Get Rid of Guests He Did Not Want.

George Fitch, the Illinois humorist, had his own ideas about prison reform schemes. He expressed his attitude one day while discussing Thomas Mott Osborne's humanitarian efforts.

"Osborne's ideas may work out all right," said Fitch. "But whenever I hear of a warden holding surprise parties and running teas in his penitentiary I think of what happened when Tim Cullinan was chief of police in Junction City, Kan."

"Tim, in fact, was the whole police force. He had eleven prisoners on his hands, and was anxious to get rid of them, for they were a heavy responsibility. Tim having to keep watch over the actions of all Junction City."

"When you feed the critters," he said to the jailer one day, "just accidentally leave the door open and get out of sight for awhile."

"But times were hard and picking up a living outside wasn't so easy. Tim hadn't figured on that, but he did when he came back that evening and found the eleven prisoners still there and seven more who had slipped in while the jailer wasn't looking. Living was better and cheaper inside the jail than outside."

USED TO LIFE OF HARDSHIPS

People of Alaska Make Light of Deeds That Seem Little Less than Marvelous.

Alaskans, probably like other pioneer peoples, are so much accustomed to perils and hardships of various kinds that many deeds of reckless hardihood pass practically unnoticed when in the States would receive much acclaim. A case in point was the act of Miss Ella Fleming last February in saving her life when the treacherous seas of Prince William Sound while searching for her father, W. H. Fleming, the owner of Fleming Island, and her sweetheart, Harry Jones, the latter well known among western college men as a former star of the Washington university football team.

Fleming, accompanied by Jones, left Fleming Island in a power boat to deliver two blue foxes to Guy Whitehead, owner of a big fox ranch on Knights Island. The engine broke down and a high wind carried away their only sail. The boat finally drifted on to the rocks of Montague Island where the men lived on clams for two days until they succeeded in improvising a boat from the wreckage and drift timber found upon the beach. Their only tool was a jack knife. Nails, which were driven with stones, were secured by burning them from the wrecked timbers of the power boat, while sea grass was used for caulking. With this boat they reached Green Island after rowing 17 hours.

In the meantime Miss Fleming became alarmed at their failure to return and despite the high wind and heavy sea then running launched a small rowboat and started in search, finally landing at La Touche, 25 miles away, from which point a rescue party went out and found the shipwrecked mariners. How the young woman survived is the wonder of seamen. Upon arrival at La Touche her clothing was so heavily coated with ice and frozen so solidly to the seat of the rowboat that an ax had to be used to cut it loose before she could be lifted from the boat.

Upon hearing of the safety of her father and fiancé she promptly fainted.

HAS INVENTED NEW HEATER

Mechanic Perfects "Stove" That Replaces Desk Phone More Than Anything Else.

Among the new electric heating devices being brought out is one which looks like a desk telephone. It consists of a round, transmitterlike device, about six inches in diameter, containing the usual electric coils and with a cage in front. This is mounted on the side near the top of a standard such as is used for the electric fan.

The heater is supplied with eight feet of cord so that it may be moved around and placed either on the floor or on a table. It is made in two styles; one having two heating units and the other having but one. The latter, of course, is less expensive to buy and uses less current.

The double unit one, however, gives off sufficient heat to warm a room of considerable size. This heater can be used not only to heat a room, but can be placed in such a position that it will warm the feet only.—Popular Science.

Rhubarb Jelly.

Allow one pound of sugar to a pound of rhubarb. Peel and cut up rhubarb into small pieces, put into a dish a layer of rhubarb and a layer of sugar until all is used. Do this in the evening, then in the morning pour off all the liquid you can into a saucepan and boil hard for 20 minutes. Then add the rhubarb, let come to the boiling point and simmer for ten minutes. Do not stir at all. Stand your jars in boiling water to prevent breaking, and then pour jelly into them while hot. After jars are secured turn them upside down to cool, and when cool keep in a dark place. Strawberries may be put away in the same way, using less sugar.

Women and Children Who Work.

Reliable reports as to the effect that 2,000,000 women in this country are earning their living. The same authority declares that 90 per cent of the widows lack the comforts of home and 32 per cent of them the actual necessities of life, since 89 per cent of the men who die leave no estate whatever and 95 per cent of them leave almost none. This is also one of the reasons why 2,000,000 children or thereabouts less than sixteen years old have been obliged to go to work in this country. It is useless to say that they should be in school unless economic conditions are so arranged that they may do so without suffering for the necessities of life.

ENDED PERIOD OF INACTION

Before Verdun Attack Soldiers Had a Comparatively Easy Time in the Trenches.

"The Verdun battle ended a very long period of inaction," said Col. Don Nicolas y Corcijo, the Spanish military attaché, at a reception.

"The inaction was, in fact, so marked that an English officer, talking to me while over here on brief leave, said:

"Oh, yes, we were quite comfy in our winter quarters—jolly fine trenches, good bunk holes, quiet Germans. We'd been told that there were only the caretaker and his wife in the German trench opposite ours. He fired the shots while she sent up the flares. "We used to get so fed up with doing nothing," the English officer continued, "that we'd organize every Friday a cleaning fatigue. We'd take down all our sandbags and give them a thorough dusting, and sections of our men, armed with the very latest and most potent polishes, would go out and polish up the long lines of wire entanglements till they shone like virgin silver in the winter sun."

"Of course," ended Colonel Corcijo, "the Verdun offensive ended all that kind of joking talk."

From One to Another.

A tribute by Homer T. Davies of Concordia: "The Kansas office was favored with a fine visit from Mr. W. C. Palmer, famous all over Kansas as the editor and brilliant paragrapher of the Jewell City Republican. Billy has but one fault—chin whiskers. He has but one diversion from strict attention to business—the annual conference of the Methodist church, of which he is a faithful and consistent member. Billy Palmer is, and has been, an inspiration to many an aspiring young newspaper man. He began his career as a newspaper man as a kid printer in the Republican office, when it was owned by the Musers. He now owns the paper and the building where it is printed. He has stock in banks and other corporations in his home town. He lives in one of the swell homes of the town—and there's not a dirty dollar in all his possessions—and, better than all, he has the confidence and the respect of his fellow citizens. Billy Palmer has attained success in life."—Kansas City Star.

Miles Standish Tale "Myth."

One by one the good old tales that cheered childhood's happy hours are being taken away from us. First comes Sidney George Fisher and declares the Washington hatchet and cherry tree tradition an "exploded myth." Now comes Rev. Paul Sturtevant Howe, rector of the Church of the Advocate, Cape May, and declares that Miles Standish never sent John Alden to woo Priscilla Mullen.

Doctor Howe told the members of the Mayflower society at their annual banquet that he knew there was no foundation for Longfellow's famous poem because he himself was a descendant of John and Priscilla. John Alden "spoke for himself" all the time, said Doctor Howe, and Miles Standish barely knew Priscilla.

Cement Shot From Gun.

In order to waterproof the upstream face of the Elephant Butte dam of the United States reclamation service in New Mexico, a wooden raft was launched in the water of the reservoir formed by the structure and from it a mixture of cement, sand and water was shot on the face of the dam by means of a gun operated by compressed air. The coating was applied in horizontal strips about ten feet high and the length of the dam at water level. The mortar waterproofing coating was applied in four layers, each about one-fourth of an inch thick. Numerous samples taken from the face of the dam showed perfect adhesion of the waterproofing coat to the original concrete.—Engineering Record.

Peanuts Served Free With Meals.

Down in the jewelry section of Maiden Lane, New York, there is a restaurant where peanuts are piled high in dishes on every table.

So far as is known this is the only establishment to maintain help-yourself dishes for which no charge is made.

Among the patrons nearly all dip into the peanut dish about pie time, but the number of peanuts eaten in a day is not great.

The manager says he has always believed that there should be something served in a restaurant with the compliments of the house.

Like the late George Francis Train, he maintains that peanuts are good for digestion.

Ever tag along in the wake of a smoke-sputtering, gas-coughing car or truck that had you sputtering and coughing in turn? Yes, we all have. And more than once we could have been arrested for what we thought of the driver in the car ahead. With careful driving and proper lubrication, cars should not smoke—with the emphasis on "proper lubrication."

Atlantic Polarine is "proper lubrication" for eight out of ten cars. It is the famous year-round oil that is exactly right under all driving conditions.

In all alternative cases, one of the other three principal motor oils—Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium" or Atlantic "Heavy"—is the one to use.

Here is a group of four motor oils produced by the oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the entire world.

The group is a result of patient research and experimentation conducted in a manner that a plant of smaller size and equipment could not have attempted. Motor experts and oil specialists seriously recommend these oils as the correct lubricants for YOU.

In actual tests it has been demonstrated that a properly lubricated car will often yield as much as five more miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Ask your garageman which of these four oils is best suited to your particular car, then buy that oil—and use it.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

MRS. MARGARET DARROCH DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME IN DONORA

Was Born in Scotland and Came Here 30 Years Ago, Settling at Newell—Large Family Left.

Mrs. Margaret Darroch, aged 77 years, died Monday at the home of her daughter Mrs. Joseph Schmitt at 713 Thompson avenue Donora. She was born in Scotland and came to this country 30 years ago, settling in Merchantsville, now Newell. She leaves her husband and the following sons and daughters: Hugh of California, Henry of Newell, Mrs. Joseph Schmitt of Donora, Mrs. James McGinnis of Latrobe, Mrs. Michael Roach of Pittsburgh and one sister, Mrs. Rosa McGinnis of Pittsburgh. Also living are 35 grand children and two great grandchildren. The funeral will be held with requiem high mass at St. Thomas Roman Catholic church, Coal Centre at 10 o'clock Wednesday. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

Lorraine Buchanan of the Lorraine Buchanan-Murray Company at the Palace Theatre tonight and Wednesday.

HIPPOPOTAMUS IS THE SMALLEST IN WORLD

Blood-sucking behemoths of Holy Writ were once quite popular with women. The tall, slender gentleman in a top hat, who cracked his cane behind the roses, was the quite enthusiastic in the presence of the animals who, according to the old records, were up to the neck in blood.

For a little George is fairly small, and his first journey through the United States in the grand old showmen's train, and there is only one—worth half a million of dollars.

George will embark from his special car in the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace combined shows' train at an hour when he will be ending their travels as a day. He will be travelling into a cage in preparation for the day's work.

George is the smallest hippopotamus in the world—as far as can be learned. He is worth $17,000, with no discount for cash.

George has been in the United States only a short time, but from his joyful demeanor his trainers have concluded that he thoroughly approves of us as a nation.

But George is only a part of the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus. There are clowns and bareback riders and acrobats—among them the only girl acrobat who can turn a double somersault in the air.

The circus will give two performances in Charleroi, Saturday, May 13. The doors of the big menagerie tent will be thrown open at 1 and 7 o'clock, an hour before the big performance begins in the main tent. The parade is at 11 a. m.

WILL TELL IN SONG LIFE STORY OF "QUEEN ESTHER"

The beautiful story of the life of "Queen Esther" will be told in song and with appropriate costumes, at the high school auditorium, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, by the high school under the direction of Prof. L. T. Daniel. It is extremely beautiful. Every musical work ever written, outside of some of the standard oratorios, has equaled the popularity of "Queen Esther," which was composed by W. B. Brunsbury, of Root and Brunsbury fame. These two excellent musicians were at the height of their popularity practically a half century ago and many of their songs were sung on the battlefields of the civil war. "Queen Esther" has been sung in all lands of the civilized globe and it is still as popular as ever. The tunefulness of the music, which is characterized by marked simplicity, is particularly fitting to the story of the life of "Queen Esther." A pleasing interpretation of the cantata here may be anticipated.

Grandmother's Medicines
Our grandmothers were wise in the virtues of the herbs of the field. They used to gather and store roots and herbs and use them to cure the ailments of their families—wormwood, thoroughwort, sage, rue, camomile—the list might go on and on of the healing plants with which they made us familiar.

Now their grand-daughters get the extracts from just such good old roots and herbs, from the nearest drugstore, ready prepared for use. One such medicine, which women find best for their own ailments, is the well-known Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Using Butter.
Butter is the most easily digested of all the animal fats, partly because of the peculiar acids which it contains. In many cases of anemia and nerve-starvation an increased amount of butter in the diet will have very beneficial results, and yet butter is the stumbling block in the way of economy in many households. It is far better to buy less expensive meats than to limit the amount of butter on the children's bread. However, the necessary amount of butter is to be used in cooking is too often overestimated. As a frying medium, it is inadequate, for when subjected to a high temperature it decomposes and imparts a disagreeable flavor. For the same reason it should never be used for oiling tins. Either cooking oils, lard or beef fat should be used instead. Because of its cost, butter has no place in plain cooking. Equally good cake, cookies, and sauces may be made with other cooking fats.

HEALTH AGAIN HAD SUFFERED FOR 10 YEARS

Kinter Relieved of Serious Stomach Trouble. Due to Typhoid Fever.

That Tanlac is an unusual body invigorant and restorer of the ravages of diseases is indicated by the experience of A. A. Kinter, a switchman on the New York Central Railroad, who resides at 517 Cascade St., Erie, Pa.

Mr. Kinter has had a remarkable restoration to complete health, after ten years of illness. He said:

"I had typhoid fever ten years ago which left my stomach in very bad condition. I had terribly severe spells periodically, when I could not keep anything I ate on my stomach. "When I was having these spells, I would be awakened from my sleep by terrible choking spells and it seemed like my chest would burst and my heart would stop. I would be afraid I was going to die before daylight.

"I took all kinds of remedies, but they did me no good. "Finally, I saw Tanlac advertised. I bought a bottle. After the first few doses, its effect on me was almost marvelous.

"My stomach trouble began to disappear, my appetite improved and I was able to eat a big meal and digest it.

"After I had taken three bottles my health was remarkably improved. Now I can eat whatever I please, I sleep sound as a dollar all night long, and all the bad effects of the typhoid fever are gone."

Tanlac is now sold in Charleroi exclusively by Pipers Pharmacy where the premier preparation can now be had.

MUSICAL AUXILIARY

ter, Mrs. John S. Metz and Miss Mamie Rockwell was interpreted well. Miss Janice Graer, a Monessen girl, sang "Lovely Rosebuds," an alto solo in a manner that pleased. The soprano solo, "The Bees," sung by Mrs. A. G. Lewis as an obligato solo with chorus accompaniment was especially effective. One of the brightest features of the evening was the solo work of Miss Isabella Dorbritz, singing the mezzo-soprano solo, "O Happy Streamlet." The "Good Night" quartet of the cantata was happily presented by Miss Elizabeth Frew, Miss Elma Collins, Miss Georgene Parsons and Miss June Swan. The concluding number was "Garden of Flowers" one of the most entertaining chorus numbers of the entire evening.

With a single exception all the accompaniments but one were played by Miss May Barth and her work was that of an artist. The exception was that of the accompaniment for Miss Treasure, violinist, which was rendered nicely by Miss Haines, the director.

With the concert the Musical Auxiliary practically winds up its musical program for the second year of its most successful existence. Plans are under way for a continuance of the organization the coming year.

No Quorum; No Meeting.

No quorum of members of North Charleroi council being present at the scheduled time for a meeting of that body Monday evening, no meeting was held.
